1. Taylor has addressed consumers' increasing interest in environmental responsibility with its new line of Green Living scales, which are made from 90% recycled or recyclable materials. Shown here is a solar powered model that requires no external energy source.
2. Violight UV Razor Sanitizer serves as both a sanitizer and travel case for manual razors and is said to eliminate up to 99.9% of germs. The platinum-hued new unit features an automatic on and off capability.
3. The Sanyo Zero Gravity Foot Massager is said to be the first foot massager to employ zero gravity positioning, a benefit that provides an enhanced massage experience. The unit's automatic rotation enables the consumer to get an optimum massage seated in a chair, a stool or lying down.
4. The Verilux Rise N Shine Classic alarm clock utilizes light technology that simulates a natural sunrise and can be set to choose between 20 light levels. The technology is said to be effective at combating insomnia, fatigue and lethargy.
5. Nature Bright's Dia Light and Dawn Therapy machine functions as both an alarm clock and light therapy machine, waking consumers to simulated morning sunlight. The company's proprietary Sky Effect Technology is said to simulate the light levels of a bright blue sky.
